Monthly Commentary

The Hamilton Lane Global Private Assets Fund AUD Hedged share class returned 0.08% for the month of December, bringing annualized since-inception returns to 11.85%. While roughly 30% of the Hedged share class is exposed to currency fluctuations, the depreciation of the US dollar by 2.10% against the Australian dollar had a negative impact on performance this month. The public markets were up in December, with MSCI World returning 0.81% in USD terms.

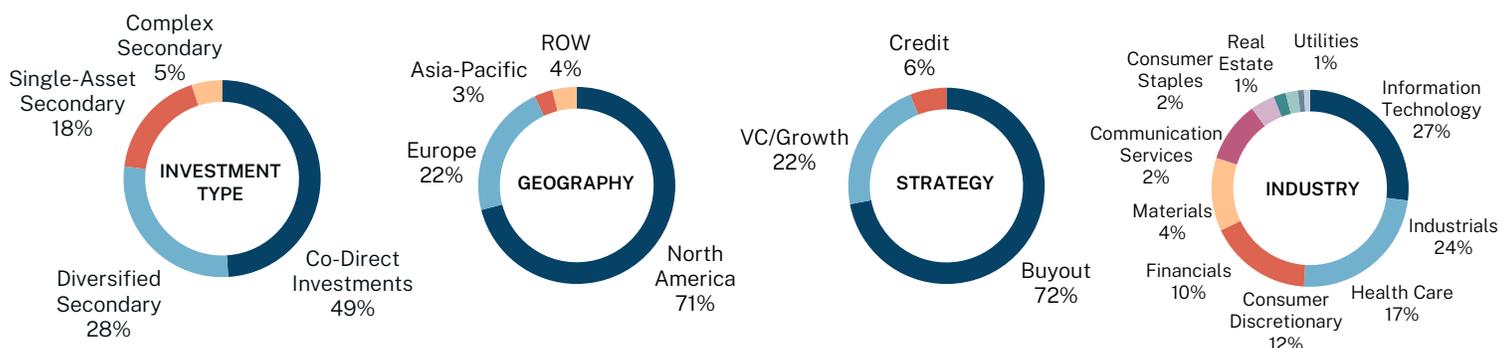

Performance across the GPA portfolio was positive in December, with gains across both secondaries and co-investments with co-investments serving as the primary driver of returns. December’s results capped a strong year, bringing full-year 2025 portfolio performance to 11.23%.

One of the top contributors during the month was TradingView, a global charting and analytics platform with a large and highly engaged user base that enables both retail and professional investors to analyze markets and identify trading opportunities across asset classes. Hamilton Lane invested in TradingView in April 2024 alongside Smash Capital. The uplift in valuation in December reflects recent funding rounds, including the acquisition of a meaningful stake by a large growth investor at an $8 billion equity valuation, following two prior secondary transactions in Q3 and early Q4 2025 at $7 billion. TradingView has continued to deliver strong financial performance and benefit from favorable macro tailwinds, underscoring the Fund’s exposure to high-quality assets.

Deployment remained steady through year-end, with one new investment closed in December. Project Activate is a GP-led secondary transaction with A.Capital that provides liquidity on a select number of A Capital Partners II, L.P. investments, while allowing the GP and new investors to remain positioned for continued value creation. This late-stage venture investment includes four core positions that account for a majority of NAV: Notion, Hugging Face, Databricks, and Replit. Hamilton Lane had an advantage in this competitive transaction due to familiarity with the assets and a strong relationship with the GP. The transaction provides access to a portfolio of market-leading companies across the disruptive tech and SaaS sectors with compelling future growth potential.

GPA’s cash balance stood at approximately 6% as of the end of December. This capital is earmarked for transactions expected to close over the next three months across a range of compelling direct co-investment and secondary opportunities.
